Books/Videos for your Research

To access the IWU book catalog, start at the OCLS homepage (<http://www.indwes.edu/ocls>); >> Library Catalog (under Books); You can use the dropdown to change the search to author, title or subject. (Default is keyword.) The Advanced Catalog option (on the OCLS home page) allows for additional search options, like limiting to e-books, media, etc.

Create a list of books by check marking desired titles (title listing screen); be sure to save everything on that screen before moving on to another screen. Click on Add Marked to Folder or Save to My Lists, to create a list to save, email, print, request. Once marked, click on: View Folder. You can email the list to yourself, save it or you can print it out. To request the books from IWU, you might want to email the list to yourself first or save it to your computer. Then you can forward the list to ocls@indwes.edu, making sure that you include your name and delivery option.

For an individual title request, it might be simpler to use the Request button available on the individual title screen. Fill in the information asking for your name and 14-digit library number. Request postal delivery (unless you can pick it up at Indianapolis Education Center, North) and submit it.

You can search for only e-books by limiting your search to e-books/ejournals. Click on: Advanced Catalog search screen (from the main OCLS home page) and limit by Material type >> e-books/ejournals) or if you are already in the catalog, click on: Advanced Search on the left hand side, limit to Materials type >> e-books/ejournals. IWU has over 100,000 e-books that come from a variety of vendors. Although not all may be in the catalog at this printing, the goal is to provide access via the library catalog. Since accessing these is different depending on the vendor providing them, please contact OCLS for complete instructions. Some of the vendors, e.g. Ebrary, EBSCO E-Collection do allow for downloading the books.

You may also find it useful to search other library catalogs that may be in your area. From the OCLS home page, click on: Other Libraries (under Books). Note that there are options there for WorldCat (all libraries), InCat (search over 400 Indiana libraries at one time); public libraries in Indiana; Kentucky libraries; Ohio libraries and Illinois libraries. If using other Indiana academic libraries is an option for you, you may want to request an ALI card from OCLS. You can also search catalogs worldwide by selecting WorldCat.

Using the OCLS Toolbar, click on: Books/Videos >> select the library you want to search (IWU Library Catalog; INCat; Libraries Worldwide).

Identifying Journal Titles that IWU Provides Full Content Access (A to Z database)

Use our search engine that identifies where a journal title is located, whether in an electronic database or in the Marion campus, Jackson library. Follow these steps: <http://www.indwes.edu/ocls>; >> Journal Titles (under Key Links). [You may need to authenticate with your last name and 14-digit library number.] Type the name of a journal. You can use the asterisk to truncate a title, i.e. Journal of Business* will also bring up Journal of Business Ethics, etc. The list that displays will show if the title is located in Jackson Library, or if it is available from an electronic database. Click on a database name that has dates corresponding to the date of the article/issue needed. You will be connected to the place in the database where the full content is “stored.” Follow the links to click on the appropriate issue or year, date and finally actual article needed.

Streaming Media (Films on Demand & VAST: Academic Video Online)

We have a collection of films on demand that are available to any student to view. You may access them as follows:

<http://www2.indwes.edu/ocls>

Click on: More, under Article Databases

Click on: Films & Video

Authenticate with your last name and 14-digit library access number.

You can do a title search, subject search or segment search. You can view titles by category. These are to be used for your own educational use, and should not to show in any kind of a public performance occasion, such as anything work related.

APA Helps

Additional APA helps are available as follows: <http://www.indwes.edu/ocls> >> APA Style (under Key Links).

Mobile Access

EBSCO databases (articles), e.g. Business Source Complete, Health Business, Academic Search Complete, CINAHL, MEDLINE, etc. When connecting with your mobile phone, it will recognize your hardware and reconfigure to a mobile view that is more pleasing to the eye on a small screen. It provides you with a link to the full site if you prefer this. So, just go to the databases, using your normal access via:

<http://www.indwes.edu/ocls>

You have a lot of the same functionality, but it is a lot more scaled down and you have to do more clicking to get to some of the limiting options.

iPad, iPod, iPhone, Droid app for EBSCO databases

Log into any EBSCO databases.

Scroll to the bottom of any page.

Click on: EBSCOHost iPhone/iPod Touch Application

Follow the instructions that will be sent to you via email.

Emerald

Download an app for searching Emerald.

You can search for Emerald, but there are quite a few that have Emerald in the app name. So, a more direct search is: Propeller Group.

Look for Emerald and the green script e logo for Emerald.

It is a free download.

You will need to set up a user account on the full Emerald site.

That username/password will allow you to log into the app version of Emerald.

Searching the IWU Library Catalog:

<http://m.oak.indwes.edu>

Ebrary App (for iPhone, iPod, iPad, Droid)

Create an account in Ebrary (On your computer, log in via the OCLS home page and your library access number.)

To access these books on a mobile device, you will need to look for the Bluefire app.

Download the app.

Once installed, open it and log in with your Ebrary username/password (this is not your university id or library access #)

You will also be asked to log in or create an Adobe ID (to use for downloading books to your device).

Signing into your account authorizes you with the Indiana Wesleyan University Ebrary accessible books.
